Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy snow for parts of Scotland.

This Evening and Tonight:
Snow becoming heavy and persistent across central and northern Scotland with blizzards on high ground and deep drifts. Milder elsewhere with some patchy rain in places, though also some drier, clearer spells in the south and west.

Friday:
Cold, with further snow for central and northern Scotland. Rain affecting eastern Scotland, northeast England and Northern Ireland. Brighter and milder elsewhere but some heavy showers in the southwest.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Remaining unsettled with areas of rain, sleet and snow. Mild in the south initially, this being replaced by colder weather with snow showers in the east by Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.